I have a call with Neal Patel on Wed this week –

I am planning on having him turning us on to a paid for SEO performance operator – similar to Tim Sykes –

I'll let you know how it goes. It could be a nice pairing for you Chad. Also since it's the end of Q1 – do we have any goals for q2 – and or accomplishments for q1.

Subject: Recovering From Surgery and Doing Better!

Hey Bret!

Hope you've been well. I've been working from home since early last week because of an ongoing issue with my left foot. I wanted to reach out and let you know everything is okay. I'm experiencing nerve damage from an infection from last year's surgery and recently had another operation the last week of January. Some days I'd wake up and just couldn't walk at all the pain was that bad and I didn't want to crutch to the office every morning. I've been rehabbing with foot doctor Gary Pinchney, of Mercy Medical Center and Dr. Rashidian just to find a way to manage the pain long term. Jest been dealing with this pain for the past year and since the New Year it's been unbearable. Doctor ordered me to stay off the foot and to consider some different rehab options this time around. Recovery time has been 2 to 3 weeks as I try to stay off the foot as much as possible and I'm doing therapy on a daily. I just want to be normal again! I didn't want you to worry about me. I'm trying to avoid removing this problematic bone out of my foot all together because recovery time would be months, this is the last attempt at a solution before major surgery. I know that Katie just gave birth and even though we communicate and work daily on our SEO projects I haven't had a chance to give you an update on my health but also the status of SEO Campaigns. With Katie being induced before February 15th and me recovering from surgery I wanted to reach out so that we could sit down and catch up next week. We have our Brand Campaigns, Strategic Tech Investor, Money Morning, YouTube Money Morning, OEI, etc and our campaigns are active and in progress. With Katie being out, I'll check in with Megan as her point person to make sure I assist her in anything Katie needs while she's on maternity leave and to make sure I'm available for any promo or new site launches! I wanted to touch basis with you so we're on the same page with my schedule, recovery over the next few weeks and current status of our SEO projects. I want you to be satisfied with the progress and traction we've made over the last year. With the school closings and me being home recovering from surgery I didn't want to let another day go by without reaching out to you. If possible a Tuesday, the 13th or Wednesday, the 14th I'd love to sit down with you for Lunch if you have time. Wanted to let you know my health didn't interfere with our productivity or goals and can't wait to sit with you soon. Let me know!

Talk soon!
